Perfil a UMass Amherst

Albert Lloret is an associate professor of Spanish and Catalan specializing in the literatures of the Middle Ages and the Renaissance. He holds a B.A. in Catalan Philology and a B.A. in Spanish Philology, both from the Universitat Autònoma de Barcelona, an M.A. in Medieval and Early Modern Studies from the Universitat de Girona, and a Ph.D. in Romance Languages and Literatures from the Johns Hopkins University. He joined the University of Massachusetts Amherst as an assistant professor in 2011 and received tenure and promotion in 2016. He has served as director of the graduate program in Hispanic Literatures, Cultures, and Linguistics (2015-2018) and, subsequently, as director of the Spanish and Portuguese Studies Unit (2018-2021). He has held visiting appointments at the University of Arkansas, Mount Holyoke College, Amherst College, and the Universitat Autònoma de Barcelona.

In recent years, he has taught graduate seminars examining early modern reimaginings of medieval texts, poetry and the production of space, and textual theories for digital environments. At the undergraduate level he has offered surveys of medieval and early modern Iberian literatures, and special topics courses on the ethics of premodern love literature, otherworldly travel, and the spatiality of lyric poetry.

Lloret's first book, Printing Ausiàs March (Centro para la Edición de los Clásicos Españoles, 2013), studies the ways in which sixteenth-century readers of medieval Valencian author Ausiàs March appropriated his poetry through printed editions and translations. He is also a coauthor of

The Classical Tradition in Medieval Catalan,

1300-1500

(Tamesis/Boydell & Brewer, 2018), the first comprehensive survey of the reception of the Classical tradition in the Crown of Aragon during the late Middle Ages and the early Renaissance. He is currently working on two book-length projects. One examines the spatiality of late medieval and early modern Iberian lyric poetry. His second book project looks into the political uses of printing medieval Catalan works in Habsburg Spain. He has guest-edited special issues of
